Case No. 2:20-cv-08499-JFW (KSx)

CLASS ACTION

SECOND AMENDED
 COMPLAINT FOR VIOLATION OF THE FEDERAL SECURITIES
 LAWS

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

25
 26

 28

1 I. NATURE OF THE ACTION

2 1. In an April 22, 2019 YouTube video, defendant Grant Cardone
3 (“Cardone”) stated “you’re gonna walk away with a 15% annualized return. If I’m 4 in that deal for 10 years, you’re gonna earn 150%. You can tell the SEC that’s 5 what I said it would be. They call me Uncle G and some people call me 6 Nostradamus, because I’m predicting the future dude, this is what’s gonna 7 happen.”¹ These statements were what is known as “test the waters” 8 communications, soliciting investors to purchase interests in Cardone’s equity 9 funds.

10 2. This is a class action brought on behalf of all persons and entities
11 who purchased interests in Cardone Equity Fund V, LLC (“Fund V”) and Cardone 12 Equity Fund VI, LLC (“Fund VI”), seeking to pursue remedies under the 13 Securities Act of 1933 (the “Securities Act”), 15 U.S.C. § 77(a), et seq. As 14 alleged below, defendants are responsible for false and misleading statements and 15 omitting material facts in connection with defendant Cardone Capital, LLC’s 16 public offerings of interests in Fund V and Fund VI. Specifically, defendants 17 authorized or signed the offering statements and participated in making false and 18 misleading “test the waters” communications that misstated and omitted material 19 facts in connection with the public offerings of those interests.

20 3. The public offerings were made under Regulation A of the Securities 21 Act. In this action, plaintiff asserts claims under Section 12(a)(2) of the Securities 22 Act, which provides buyers of securities an express remedy for material 23 misrepresentations and omissions made by a seller or solicitor in connection with 24 the offer or sale of an issuer’s securities involving a prospectus or oral 25 communications, and Section 15 of the Securities Act, which extends liability for 26 the Section 12 claims to those who control the issuer.

27
28 ¹ <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=OoeJkZZGa2c> (last visited February 3, 2021).

1 4. Defendant Cardone Capital, LLC (“Cardone Capital”) provides real 2 estate investment opportunities to the so-called “everyday investor” through real 3 estate crowdfunding. According to Cardone Capital’s website, Cardone Capital 4 “finds the deals, negotiates the purchase and financing, and closes the deal” and 5 generates rental payments from creditworthy tenants to pay monthly cash 6 distributions to investors. Investors invest in Cardone Capital’s equity funds, 7 which have been formed to acquire interests in income earning real estate.

8 5. Defendant Cardone is a sales trainer, entrepreneur, social media 9 influencer, and author. He is, and was at all times relevant to this action, the 10 Chief Executive Officer of Cardone Capital.

11 6. Fund V and Fund VI are offered to both accredited and non-12 accredited investors. A non-accredited investor is any investor who does not meet 13 the income or net worth requirements specified by the Securities and Exchange 14 Commission (“SEC”). Under the SEC guidelines in effect at the time of the 15 offerings, a non-accredited investor is anyone earning less than $200,000 annually 16 with a total net worth of less than $1 million when their primary residence is 17 excluded.

18 7. Fund V claims to have set a world record when it was the first ever to 19 raise $50 million via Regulation A using social media crowdfunding. It began 20 receiving subscriptions from investors on December 12, 2018. On September 20, 21 2019, Fund V completed raising $50 million from over 2,200 individual investors.
22 Fund VI is also a $50 million fund. It began receiving subscriptions from 23 investors on October 16, 2019. Fund VI closed on or around June 25, 2020.

24 8. Cardone Capital and Cardone targeted what they called the 25 “everyday investor,” soliciting investors to purchase interests in Fund V and Fund
26 VI through social media and urging consumers to invest their retirement funds 27 with Cardone Capital. Defendants’ statements on social media are considered 28 “test the waters” communications, which are offers of securities subject to the 1 anti-fraud and other provisions of the federal securities laws. Cardone Capital and 2 Cardone made a number of false and misleading statements in connection with 3 these “test the waters” communications.

4 9. For example, Cardone assured investors that their capital was 5 “protected, waiting for appreciation,” that he can “return to investors at least 2X-6 3X their investment” and that investing $100,000 would pay $500 in distributions 7 monthly.

18 10. It was false and misleading to represent to investors that “their 19 capital” was “protected, waiting for appreciation” because, among other 20 undisclosed risks, investors’ faced the risk that they would lose some or all of 21 their investment if the Funds were not able to make the monthly debt service 22 payments. The statements contained no cautionary language warning investors of 23 these risks.

24 11. These statements were test the waters communications targeting 25 investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend
 26 defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

1 12. In one video, on September 17, 2019, Cardone advertised that if 2 someone invested $220,000 in Cardone Capital funds, this would result in a 3 $660,000 “position” in the fund.

14 13. Cardone claimed that investing $220,000 would allow investors to 15 earn “about $12,000-$15,000 a year” in distributions. Investors have received 16 only a 4.5% rate of return on their investments in Fund V and Fund VI. At that 17 rate of return, if someone invested $220,000, they could expect to earn only 18 $9,900 per year in distributions.

19 14. Cardone also told potential investors that he expected to sell the 20 underlying real property in 5 to 7 years, at which point, he expected the $220,000 21 investment to be worth $660,000, “plus your cash flow.” These statements were 22 false and misleading because Cardone has no reasonable or historical basis for 23 claiming that a given property will triple in value in five to seven years.
24 Defendants’ previous investments had not tripled in value within this time period.
25 Nor did defendants include any cautionary language, let alone meaningful 26 cautionary language, in these statements warning investors that the properties in 27
28

1 which the Funds were investing may not increase, let alone triple, in value in five 2 to seven years or identifying any risks that may prevent such results.

12
 13 15. These statements were test the waters communications targeting 14 investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend
 15 defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

16 16. Cardone Capital further represented to potential investors that their 17 capital would be “safe” in Cardone Capital funds because “Cardone Capital is 18 built on real assets which are already established and stable in nature,” without 19 sufficiently warning investors of the risks of investing in the real estate properties 20 in question.

17. These statements were test the waters communications targeting investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

18. In addition to the foregoing “test the waters” communications, Cardone and Cardone Capital made materially false and misleading statements regarding (1) whether investors would obtain a 15% internal rate of return on their investments; (2) the amounts of monthly distributions they would receive; and (3) investors’ debt obligations.

19. Cardone and Cardone Capital also made materially false and misleading statements in the offering documents and omitted to state material facts relating to whether the properties would be acquired at “below-market prices” and that Cardone Capital and Grant Cardone had acquired properties before selling them to the funds.

20. Since this lawsuit was filed, defendants have begun adding disclaimers to their social media posts. For example, in Grant Cardone’s October 7, 2020 post soliciting accredited investors for a different fund, he included the following statement: “The funds described herein are open to ‘accredited investors’ only, through an offering made in accordance with Regulation D, Rule

1 506(c) of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended. In purchasing securities 2 through a 506(c) offering, we are obligated to verify any participating investor's 3 status as an 'accredited investor' in accordance with Rule 501 of Regulation D.
4 Investors should consider the investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses 5 of the fund carefully before investing. We do not make any representations as to 6 the accuracy or completeness of the information contained on this website and 7 undertake no obligation to update the information. Past performance is not an 8 indicator of any future results. All investments contain risk and may lose value.
9 This does not constitute an offer to sell or a solicitation of interest to purchase any 10 securities or investment advisory services in any country or jurisdiction in which 11 such offer or solicitation is not permitted by law."

12 21. In another post, dated December 9, 2020, Grant Cardone included the 13 following disclaimer: "The information provided is for convenience only. It is not 14 investment advice or a recommendation, it does not constitute a solicitation to buy 15 or sell securities, and it may be not be relied upon in considering an investment in 16 a Cardone fund. Past performance is no guarantee of future results. Any 17 historical returns expected returns or probability projections may not reflect actual 18 future performance. All securities involve risk and may result in partial or total 19 loss. Investment in Cardone funds is available only to independently verified 20 'accredited investors' through an offering made in accordance with Rule 506(c) 21 under Regulation D of the Securities Act of 1933. Before investing in any 22 Cardone fund, prospective investors should consider carefully the investment 23 objective(s), risks, arches, and expenses. While the data we use from third parties 24 is believed to be reliable, we cannot ensure the accuracy or completeness of the 25 data provided. Cardone Capital does not provide legal or tax advice. Prospective 26 investors should consult with a tax or legal adviser before making any investment 27 decision."

1 22. None of the test the waters communications pertaining to Fund V or 2 Fund VI contain any cautionary language or any of the disclaimers described in 3 Paragraphs 20 and 21. They only contain the legend defendants told the SEC they 4 would attach to any test the waters communications under Rule 255: “Our 5 offerings under Rule 506(c) are for accredited investors only. For our anticipated 6 Regulation A offering, until such time that the Offering Statement is qualified by 7 the SEC, no money or consideration is being solicited, and if sent in response 8 prior to qualification, such money will not be accepted. No offer to buy the 9 securities can by accepted and no part of the purchase price can be received until 10 the offering statement is qualified. Any offer may be withdrawn or revoked, 11 without obligation or commitment of any kind, at any time before notice of its 12 acceptance given after the qualification date. A person's indication of interest 13 involves no obligation or commitment of any kind. Our Offering Circular, which 14 is part of the Offering Statement, may be found at 15 www.cardonecapital.com/offering-1.”

16 23. Cardone Capital’s website now also contains the following 17 disclaimers, which were not made to prospective investors, including the 18 members of the class, before this action:

- 19 • “The information provided is for convenience only. It is not 20 investment advice or a recommendation, it does not constitute a 21 solicitation to buy or sell securities, and it may not be relied upon in 22 considering an investment in a Cardone fund. Past performance is no 23 guarantee of future results. Any historical returns expected returns or 24 probability projections may not reflect actual future performance. All 25 securities involve risk and may result in partial or total loss.
26 Investment in Cardone funds is available only to independently 27 verified ‘accredited investors’ through an offering made in accordance 28 with Rule 506(c) under Regulation D of the Securities Act of 1933.

1 24. By virtue of Section 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act, the making of 2 material misstatements and omissions in offering documents and “test the waters” 3 communications is prohibited. In spite of their obligation to be truthful to 4 investors, Cardone and Cardone Capital instead took advantage of investors.

5 II. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

Text [] to invest. #Investing #Real estate #Fund #PassiveIncome #CardoneCapital #GrantCardone #10X #Investing.” He did not include the required SEC legend on

1 this post even though Cardone represented to the SEC on September 26, 2018 that 2 “[a]ny mention of any specific fund of Cardone Capital will contain the proper 3 legends” in connection with the “Cardone Capital Marketing Policy.”

4 IV. REGULATION A OFFERINGS

5 42. Cardone Capital has a number of funds in which individuals and 6 entities can invest. The funds were formed to acquire interests in income-earning 7 real estate.

8 43. For Fund V and Fund VI, Cardone Capital raised money for the 9 funds by registering with the SEC as Regulation A offerings under Title IV of the 10 2015 Jumpstart Our Business Starts (JOBS) Act. Regulation A provides for 11 “mini-public offerings,” which are offerings exempt from SEC registration.
12 However, the offering materials are subject to SEC filing requirements. To offer 13 securities under Regulation A, an issuer must file an offering statement on Form 14 1-A with the SEC, including an offering circular for distribution to investors and 15 all required exhibits.

16 44. Form 1-A filings are subject to SEC review and comment. Before 17 sales under Regulation A can be made, the SEC reviews the offering materials in 18 order to “qualify” the Form 1-A. Subject to certain conditions, a Regulation A 19 issuer is permitted to use “test the waters” communications to communicate with 20 investors to see if they might be interested in an offering before filing a Form 1-A.

21 45. Regulation A governs how an issuer may communicate with 22 potential investors around the time of a Regulation A offering. The rules specify 23 the types of communications about the offering an issuer can make depending on 24 the stage of the qualification process. Specifically, no offers may be made until 25 the Form 1-A is qualified, with the exception of testing the waters 26 communications that meet the requirements of Rule 255.

27 46. “Test the waters” communications are considered offers of securities 28 and are subject to the anti-fraud provisions of the securities laws. All test the 1 waters communications must contain a legend stating: (i) that no money or other 2 consideration is being solicited or accepted, (ii) that offers to buy the securities 3 cannot be accepted, and no part of the purchase price can be received, until the 4 Form 1-A is qualified and any offer can be withdrawn or revoked at any time 5 before notice of its acceptance is given after the qualification date, (iii) that an 6 indication of interest involves no obligation or commitment of any kind, and (iv) 7 the contact information of a person from whom the preliminary offering circular 8 can be obtained, a preliminary URL at which the offering circular is available, or 9 a complete copy of the document (if the Form 1-A has already been filed).

10 47. Post-filing “test the waters” communications must include a current 11 preliminary offering circular or a notice informing potential investors where to 12 obtain one (i.e., by providing the URL of the preliminary offering circular). An 13 issuer must distribute revised “test the waters” materials if any post-filing testing 14 the waters material contains information that is or becomes materially inaccurate 15 or inadequate.

16 48. Written or broadcast “test the waters” materials must be filed as 17 Exhibits to Form 1-A when the issuer initially confidentially submits or files the 18 Form 1-A.

19 V. DEFENDANTS’ MATERIAL MISSTATEMENTS AND OMISSIONS

20 A. Material Misstatements and Omissions in “Test the Waters” 21 Communications

22 49. Cardone Capital acknowledged that pursuant to SEC Rule 255, “test 23 the waters” communications are subject to the anti-fraud provisions of federal 24 securities laws and cannot contain false or misleading communications. When the 25 SEC required Cardone Capital to provide a “detailed analysis regarding how all of 26 [its] communications comply with Regulation A and Section 5 under the 27 Securities Act,” Cardone Capital responded on November 5, 2018 that it had 28 “conducted a comprehensive audit of its online presence including all websites

1 and social media accounts” and adopted a “Social media and solicitation policy” 2 to ensure “ongoing and future compliance.”

3 50. Cardone Capital’s letter attached an “Action Plan and Written Social 4 Media Compliance Manual,” which provided, “All social media posts on all social 5 media platforms, videos, websites, live shows, replay of live shows have to be 6 compliance with the SEC. This is for every social media platform as well as 7 emails that solicit investor interest. Until we ‘clear’ comments, no posting on 8 social media will occur until it has been passed through the Compliance Officer 9 and Compliance process. Once comments are cleared, then we will have an 10 official opening date, we will amend this manual to reflect the new guidelines for 11 posting on Social Media.”

12 51. As to Instagram posts, specifically, Cardone Capital wrote: “Any 13 post that invites potential investors to the website or to inquire about investing 14 MUST contain a Legend. The Long Legend should be used.”

15 52. The Manual went on: “As such, this social media policy is a living 16 document and will be reviewed on an ongoing basis with an emphasis on 17 preventing false and misleading communications.” It went on to describe 18 requirements for Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, GCTV (Grant Cardone TV), 19 YouTube, Website (cardonecapital.com), LinkedIn, and Podcasts and stated that 20 “The Web Team and SEC Compliance Officer will keep track of all media 21 postings for compliance.”

22 1. Cardone Capital’s Statements About Returns Were Baseless
23 and Materially False Misrepresentations and Omissions

24 53. In the July 3, 2018 version of the Fund V offering statement, which 25 was not qualified by the SEC, defendants said they would seek opportunities that 26 would afford a 15% IRR based on a ten-year holding period and made the 27 following statements:

1 (a) “Currently, our strategy includes paying a monthly distribution 2 to investors under this Offering that would result in a return of 3 approximately fifteen percent (15%) annualized return on 4 investment, net of expenses, of which there is no guarantee.”

5 (b) “The Company will attempt to achieve an overall Company 6 internal rate of return (IRR) of fifteen (15%) percent per year, 7 net of expenses.”

8 54. The July 3, 2018 version of the Fund V offering statement also 9 referenced Cardone’s prior operating results of prior programs, which included 10 Cardone Equity Fund I, Cardone Equity Fund II, and Cardone Equity Fund III.
11 None of those prior investments had obtained a 15% internal rate of return.

12 55. On July 30, 2018, a letter from Jennifer Gowetski, Senior Counsel, 13 Office of Real Estate and Commodities of the SEC, directed Cardone Capital: 14 “We note your disclosure on page 17 and throughout the offering statement that 15 references your strategy to pay a monthly distribution to investors that will result 16 in a return of approximately 15% annualized return on investment. We further 17 note you have commenced only limited operations, have not paid any 18 distributions to date and do not appear to have a basis for such return. Please 19 revise to remove this disclosure throughout the offering statement.” 20 Notwithstanding the specific warning from the SEC that it had no basis for 21 making this statement, Defendants continued to advertise a 15% internal rate of 22 return to potential investors.

23 56. On April 22, 2019, Grant Cardone stated in his YouTube video: “[I]t 24 doesn’t matter whether [the investor] [is] accredited [or] non-accredited . . .
25 you’re gonna walk away with a 15% annualized return. If I’m in that deal for 10 26 years, you’re gonna earn 150%.” He then said, “You can tell the SEC that’s what 27 I said it would be. They call me Uncle G and some people call me Nostradamus, 28 because I’m predicting the future dude, this is what’s gonna happen.” One minute

1 after making this statement, Cardone clarified that his remarks applied to Fund V, 2 but that any differences between Cardone Equity Fund IV and Fund V “[do] not 3 matter” for purposes of this statement.² In fact, the SEC had told Cardone nine 4 months before that he had no basis for making such a statement. These statements 5 were test the waters communications targeting investors in Funds V and VI. The 6 YouTube video contains the Rule 255 legend defendants told the SEC they would 7 affix to any test the waters communications.

8 57. The below advertisements appeared on Cardone Capital’s Instagram
9 account, all of which tell investors that Cardone Capital targeted at least a 15% 10 internal rate of return for Fund V and Fund VI. In the May 5, 2019 advertisement, 11 Cardone Capital advertised a “15% Targeted IRR,” “monthly distributions” and 12 “long term appreciation” in connection with soliciting investments in Fund VI. At 13 the time Cardone Capital made this statement, Fund V and Fund VI had 14 commenced only limited operations and had not made any distributions to date., 15 and Cardone Capital did not have a basis for claiming that they would have such a 16 return.

4 59. In the October 16, 2019 advertisement for Fund VI, Cardone Capital 5 advertised how 10X Living at Panama City Beach, one of the properties in which 6 Fund VI acquired an interest, had a targeted investor IRR of 17.88%, a targeted 7 equity multiple of 2.5-3X, and a targeted average cash yield of 10.31%. At the 8 time Cardone Capital made this statement, Fund VI had commenced only limited 9 operations and had not made any distributions to date, and Cardone Capital did 10 not have a basis for claiming such a rate of return on investments.

62. These statements were test the waters communications targeting investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

63. Cardone and Cardone Capital had no historical track record of realizing a 15% internal rate of return. Before forming Fund V and Fund VI, Grant Cardone and Cardone Capital had established several equity funds which, like Funds V and VI, invested in multi-unit rental properties. Those equity funds include Cardone Equity Fund I, Cardone Equity Fund II, and Cardone Equity Fund III, which were formed in 2016 and 2017. None have achieved these returns.

64. Defendants failed to inform investors in Fund V and Fund VI that none of their other equity funds had achieved a 15% rate of return. To the extent that these statements were forward looking, they implied that defendants had achieved these returns in the past. Indeed, Cardone Capital’s October 28, 2019 Instagram post solicited investors by specifically highlighting defendants’ past performance, noting that Cardone Capital had “typically [chosen] A class

1 [properties] in top-tier, high growth markets” and that “Cardone Capital is built on 2 real assets which are already established and stable in nature.”

3 65. As alleged in Paragraphs 9–14 and incorporated by reference here, 4 these were not the only representations about returns made by Cardone when 5 soliciting investments for Fund V and Fund VI: Cardone told investors he could 6 “return to investors at least 2X-3X their investment.” (¶ 9). Cardone also told 7 investors that within five to seven years, a “$220,000 investment [would] be 8 worth $660,000, ‘plus your cash flow.’” (¶ 14). This is at least a 200% return.

9 66. Cardone’s representations to investors about returns were material 10 misrepresentations. First, Cardone Capital and its principal, Grant Cardone, did 11 not believe that these statements were accurate or true. The SEC had determined 12 that Cardone did not have any factual basis to promise investors a 15% IRR. In 13 making that determination, the SEC had before it the track record of Cardone’s 14 prior equity funds, but the SEC nonetheless concluded that Cardone lacked a 15 reasonable factual basis for the representation of a 15% IRR. The SEC gave 16 Cardone and Cardone Capital an opportunity to defend this representation and 17 thereby keep it in Fund V’s offering materials, but they did not even try, and 18 agreed to omit the representation in order to make the offering materials available 19 for distribution to investors. Defendants therefore knew and understood that they 20 had no basis for representing a 15% IRR (or higher) and had no information with 21 which to challenge the SEC’s determination. Cardone knew about the SEC’s 22 determination, but nonetheless continued to make the very same representation of 23 a 15% IRR—and representations of even higher returns—to investors, without 24 disclosing to investors that the SEC had made that determination and that 25 Defendants had agreed to omit the representations from the offering materials in 26 order to comply with the SEC’s determination. Defendants’ statements to 27 investors did not align with the information they had in their possession when 28

1 making them, and Defendants did not believe the statements made to investors 2 were true at the time they were made.

3 67. Cardone’s representations about returns were also objectively untrue.
4 Cardone had no basis to promise investors a 15% IRR, as the SEC recognized.
5 When reviewing Fund V’s offering circular, the SEC considered Cardone’s track 6 record of prior investments, but concluded that he nonetheless had no basis to 7 project a 15% internal rate of return. Cardone also projected higher returns, 8 including telling investors they could double or triple their money, and the 9 agency’s determination demonstrates the falsity of those projections too.

10 68. As the Ninth Circuit recognized, the SEC’s determination “‘call[s] 11 into question Cardone’s basis for offering his projections of a 15% IRR and 12 promises of large monthly distributions or that investors would double or triple 13 their investments.” Pino, 2023 WL 2158802, at *3 (quoting City of Dearborn
14 Heights Act 345 Police & Fire Retirement System v. Align Technology, Inc., 856 15 F.3d 605, 616 (9th Cir. 2017)).

16 69. Second, Cardone and Cardone Capital’s representations to investors 17 about returns were also misleading because they omitted material information.
18 Cardone and Cardone Capital did not, in any of these representations, tell 19 investors that just months earlier the SEC had determined that they lacked any 20 basis to project such returns. The Ninth Circuit held: “Pino plausibly alleges that 21 by omitting mention of the SEC’s communication to Cardone Capital that there 22 was no basis to represent that investors would receive monthly distributions 23 resulting in a 15% annualized return on their investments, the alleged 24 misstatements relating to IRR and distributions were misleading to a reasonable 25 person reading the statements fairly and in context.” Pino, 2023 WL 2158802, at 26 *3.

27 70. Defendants’ statements regarding investors’ rates of return were also 28 not accompanied by any cautionary language, let alone meaningful cautionary

1 language. Defendants did not caution investors that they had failed to achieve a 2 15% rate of return in the past. Defendants also did not caution about the risks
3 specific to investing in these Funds. For example, at the time these statements 4 were made, Fund V and Fund VI had not yet acquired, or were in the early stages 5 of seeking to acquire, rental properties. The Funds had not even identified certain 6 properties that would they would eventually purchase. Yet, in these test the waters 7 communications, defendants did not warn prospective investors that Fund V and 8 Fund VI might fail to acquire properties that generated these rates of return, and 9 that they had no reasonable basis to represent that they would acquire such 10 properties and, in fact, they failed to do so.

11 71. Even if defendants' statements are forward looking, the PSLRA's
12 safe harbor for forward looking statements would not apply. See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-
13 5. The statutory safe harbor does not apply to forward looking statements that are 14 "made in connection with an initial public offering" or made by a limited liability
15 company. Id. § 78u-5(b)(2)(D)–(E). Funds V and VI are both LLCs, and they 16 made these statements in connection with their initial public offerings. The 17 PSLRA's statutory safe harbor thus does not insulate defendants from liability.

18 2. Misleading Statements Regarding Monthly Distributions

19 72. Defendants overstated the amount of monthly distributions investors 20 could expect to receive after investing in the funds. As alleged in Paragraphs 12– 21 14 and incorporated by reference here, Cardone told prospective investors that 22 "investing $220,000 would allow investors to earn 'about $12,000-$15,000 a 23 year," which is between 5.5% and 6.8% in annual distributions. On another 24 occasion, Cardone told investors they would receive 5% in annual distributions.

73. On February 5, 2019, Grant Cardone advertised that investors would double their money, receive $480,000 in cashflow (i.e., monthly distributions) after investing $1,000,000, achieve “north of 15% returns after fees,” obtain a “118% return amounting to 19.6% per year,” and other disclosures that are neither in line with the offering statements, nor the representations permitted by the SEC. On an annual basis, Cardone therefore projected that investors would receive 8% in cash distributions.

74. At the time Cardone made this statement, the Funds had commenced only limited operations and had not paid any distributions to date, and Cardone did not have a basis for claiming such a rate of return on investments. Further, based on the 4.5% rate of return paid by Funds V and VI to date, after investing $1,000,000, one would only expect to receive $270,000 in monthly distributions after six years.

75. These statements were test the waters communications targeting investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

76. Cardone Capital also represented to investors that an investment of $1 million would pay $50,000 in “yearly dividend income.”

77. Based on the 4.5% rate of return actually paid by Funds V and VI to date, after investing $1,000,000, an investor would only receive $45,000 in distributions annually.

78. Cardone’s representations to investors about distributions were material misrepresentations. First, Cardone Capital and its principal, Grant Cardone, did not believe that these statements were accurate or true. The SEC had determined that Cardone did not have any factual basis to promise investors a 15% IRR. In making that determination, the SEC had before it the track record of Cardone’s prior equity funds, but the SEC nonetheless concluded that Cardone lacked a reasonable factual basis for the representation of a 15% IRR. Cash flows on an investment, including monthly cash distributions, are an important component of calculating internal rates of return. The SEC gave Cardone and Cardone Capital an opportunity to defend this representation and thereby keep it in Fund V’s offering materials, but they did not even try, and agreed to omit the representation in order to make the offering materials available for distribution to

1 investors. Defendants therefore knew and understood that they had no basis for 2 representing a 15% IRR (or higher), and related distributions, and had no
3 information with which to challenge the SEC’s determination. Yet Cardone 4 continued making representations about large distributions to prospective 5 investors, without disclosing to investors that the SEC had made that 6 determination and that Defendants had agreed to omit the representations 7 regarding a 15% IRR from the offering materials in order to comply with the 8 SEC’s determination. As the Ninth Circuit recognized, the SEC’s determination 9 “call[s] into question Cardone’s basis for offering his projections of a 15% IRR 10 and promises of large monthly distributions or that investors would double or 11 triple their investments.” Pino, 2023 WL 2158802, at *3 (quoting City of 12 Dearborn Heights Act 345 Police & Fire Retirement System v. Align Technology, 13 Inc., 856 F.3d 605, 616 (9th Cir. 2017)) (emphasis added). Defendants’ statements 14 to investors did not align with the information they had in their possession when 15 making them, and Defendants did not believe the statements made to investors 16 were true at the time they were made.

17 79. Cardone’s representations about distributions were also objectively 18 untrue. Cardone had no basis to promise investors these cash distributions. When 19 reviewing Fund V’s offering circular, the SEC considered Cardone’s track record 20 of prior investments, but concluded that he nonetheless had no basis to project a 21 15% internal rate of return. The agency’s determination demonstrates the falsity 22 of Cardone’s projections about distributions too: Cash distributions are an 23 important component of calculating IRRs. If Cardone and Cardone Capital lacked 24 a basis to project a 15% IRR, they also lacked a basis to project upwards of 8% in 25 cash distributions. These projections are part and parcel of the promises of 26 extraordinary performance Cardone made to investors—high IRRs and large 27 monthly distributions are two sides of the same coin—but, as recognized by the 28 SEC, are not justified by Cardone’s track record.

1 80. Second, Cardone and Cardone Capital’s representations to investors 2 about distributions were also misleading because they omitted material 3 information. Cardone and Cardone Capital did not, in any of these 4 representations, tell investors that just months earlier the SEC had determined that 5 they lacked any basis to project a 15% IRR. As the Ninth Circuit held: “Pino 6 plausibly alleges that by omitting mention of the SEC’s communication to 7 Cardone Capital that there was no basis to represent that investors would receive 8 monthly distributions resulting in a 15% annualized return on their investments, 9 the alleged misstatements relating to IRR and distributions were misleading to a 10 reasonable person reading the statements fairly and in context.” Pino, 2023 WL 11 2158802, at *3 (emphasis added).

12 81. These statements were test the waters communications targeting 13 investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend
14 defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

15 82. Defendants’ statements regarding distributions were also not 16 accompanied by any cautionary language, let alone meaningful cautionary 17 language. Defendants also did not caution about the risks specific to investing in 18 these Funds. For example, at the time these statements were made, Fund V and 19 Fund VI had not yet acquired, or were in the early stages of seeking to acquire, 20 rental properties. The Funds had not even identified certain properties that would 21 they would eventually purchase. Yet, in these test the waters communications, 22 defendants did not warn prospective investors that Fund V and Fund VI might fail 23 to acquire properties that would produce income sufficient to make distributions 24 in the amounts described in those communications, and that they had no 25 reasonable basis to represent that they would acquire such properties and, in fact, 26 they failed to do so.

27 83. Even if defendants’ statements are forward looking, the PSLRA’s
28 safe harbor for forward looking statements would not apply. See 15 U.S.C. § 78u-

1 5. The statutory safe harbor does not apply to forward looking statements that are
 2 “made in connection with an initial public offering” or made by a limited liability
 3 company. Id. § 78u-5(b)(2)(D)–(E). Funds V and VI are both LLCs, and they 4 made these statements in connection with their initial public offerings. The 5 PSLRA’s statutory safe harbor thus does not insulate defendants from liability.

6 84. Cardone Capital had advertised the monthly distributions as a key 7 reason to invest in the Funds:

 18 defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

19 3. Misleading Statements Regarding Debt Obligations

20 86. Cardone Capital misrepresented the extent to which investors would 21 be financially responsible for the debt incurred to finance the properties. In one 22 Instagram post, Cardone Capital wrote: “One question you might want to ask is, 23 who is responsible for the debt? The answer is Grant!”

87. This statement is materially misleading because the capital contributed by investors in Fund V and Fund VI is used to pay the debt service for the Funds, i.e., the monthly interest payments on the interest-only loans obtained by Cardone Capital on behalf of the funds. The debt is a significant operating expense for which investors are responsible by virtue of their investment in the funds. Not only was this statement objectively false, therefore, but Cardone and Cardone Capital knew it was false. Defendants were aware that they would use investor money to pay the Funds’ debt obligations. From their inception, Funds V and VI used investor money to pay debt obligations. This statement was directly at odds with information in Defendants’ possession at the time it was made, because Defendants intended to use investor money to service debt.

88. These statements were test the waters communications targeting investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

89. Similarly, Cardone Capital represented that an investment in Cardone Capital was an “asset” and not a “liability,” which was misleading because the interests in properties acquired by Fund V and Fund VI were leveraged with

1 financing debt with a loan-to-value ratio of 60-80%. The statements suggest that 2 investors are not responsible for the significant monthly debt service payments, 3 which is inaccurate and misleading. Defendants also knew this statement was not 4 accurate, because it was their intention to take out significant debt obligations and 5 use investor money to service that debt, as they did so upon the creation of Fund 6 V and Fund VI.

1 90. These statements were test the waters communications targeting
2 investors in Funds V and VI. The statements contain the Rule 255 legend
3 defendants told the SEC they would affix to any test the waters communications.

4 91. As to defendants’ statements “regarding debt obligations . . . and 5 statements that the properties acquired by the Funds were assets, rather than 6 liabilities,” the Ninth Circuit held “[t]he FAC plausibly alleged that these 7 statements were ‘untrue statements of fact,’ 15 U.S.C. § 77l(a)(2), because they 8 suggest investors are not responsible for the “significant monthly debt service 9 payments.”” Pino, 2023 WL 2158802, at *3.

10 92. Plaintiff and the members of the Class had no knowledge of the 11 untrue statements or omissions alleged herein or facts sufficient to place them on 12 notice of those untrue statements and omissions until April 2020 at the earliest, 13 when distributions of the Funds were suspended.

14 93. Defendants did not subjectively believe in the truth of their 15 statements of belief made to investors and that they failed to disclose facts known 16 to them that seriously undermined their statements.

17 VI. CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

18 94. Plaintiff bring this action on their own behalf, and on behalf of a 19 class pursuant to Rule 23(b)(3) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The 20 Class is defined as:

21 All persons and entities who purchased or otherwise acquired interests 22 in Cardone Equity Fund V and Cardone Equity Fund VI pursuant to 23 their public offerings. Excluded from the Class are defendants and 24 their directors, officers, employees and agents.

25 95. The members of the Class are so numerous that joinder of all 26 members is impracticable. While the exact number of Class members is unknown 27 to plaintiff at this time and can only be ascertained through appropriate discovery, 28 plaintiff believes that there are several thousand members of the Class. Absent

1 members of the Class may be identified from records maintained by defendants 2 and may be notified of the pendency of this action using a form of notice similar 3 to that customarily used in securities class actions.

4 96. Plaintiff's claims are typical of the claims of the members of the 5 Class, as all members of the Class were similarly affected by defendants' 6 wrongful common course of conduct complained of herein.

7 97. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately protect the interests of the 8 members of the Class and has retained counsel competent and experienced in 9 class and securities litigation.

10 98. Common questions of law and fact exist as to all members of the 11 Class and predominate over any questions solely affecting individual members of 12 the Class. Among the questions of law and fact common to the Class are:

- 13 (a) whether defendants violated the federal securities laws;
- 14 (b) whether defendants made material misstatements or omissions 15 in the Offering Documents;
- 16 (c) whether the Offering Documents were negligently prepared, 17 contained materially misleading statements, and omitted 18 material information required to be stated therein; and
- 19 (d) whether the "test the waters" communications made by 20 defendants were materially misleading and omitted material 21 information.

22 99. A class action is superior to all other available methods for the fair 23 and efficient adjudication of this controversy, since joinder of all members is 24 impracticable. The damages suffered by individual Class members may be 25 relatively small, the expense and burden of individual litigation makes it virtually 26 impossible as a practical matter for members of the Class to redress individually 27 the wrongs done to them. There will be no difficulty in the management of this 28 action as a class action.

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(Against Grant Cardone, Cardone Capital, Cardone Equity Fund V, LLC, and Cardone Equity Fund VI, LLC for Violation of § 12(a)(2) of the Securities Act)

100. Plaintiff incorporates each and every allegation set forth above as if fully set forth herein.

101. Defendants offered and sold interests in Fund V and Fund VI through offering statements and “test the waters” communications in connection with the solicitation of its public offerings.

102. By means of the defective offering statement and “test the waters” communications made in connection with solicitation of the initial public offerings, defendants promoted and sold interests in Fund V and Fund VI to plaintiff and other members of the Class.

103. The offering statement and “test the waters” communications made in connection with the solicitation of the initial public offerings contained untrue statements of material fact, and concealed or failed to disclose material facts. Defendants owed plaintiff and other members of the Class who purchased interests in Fund V and Fund VI pursuant to the offering statements and “test the waters” communications the duty to make a reasonable and diligent investigation of the statements contained in the offering statements and test the waters communications, to ensure that such statements were true, and to ensure that there was no omission to state a material fact required to be stated in order to make the statements contained therein not misleading. Defendants, in the exercise of reasonable care, should have known of the misstatements and omissions contained in the offering statements and test the waters communications as set forth above. Plaintiff, while reserving all of his rights, expressly disclaims and disavows at this time any allegation in this complaint that could be construed as alleging fraud.
