Terms of Membership

1. The Texas Association of School Boards, Inc. (TASB) Community College Attorneys Program (CCA) is associated with TASB’s Community College Services division. To be a CCA member, you must (a) represent a Texas community college that is an Associate Member of TASB; and (b) avoid representing a party that is not a member of TASB whose interests are deemed to be adverse to a community college or board of a school district, county board of education, regional education service center (ESC) board, or board of a charter school formed under the authority of Texas Education Code chapter 12, subchapters D and E, that is a member of TASB. The attached Representation Disclosure Form must be completed and submitted with this application for TASB to make an informed determination. CCA membership is further contingent upon payment of the required membership fee; however, current 2026 members of TACCA, Inc., a/k/a the Texas Association of Community College Attorneys, are exempt from paying the membership fee for 2026. If your application meets CCA membership requirements, TASB will provide you with written notice of acceptance.

2. If you become a CCA member, you agree to continue to satisfy CCA membership requirements and understand that membership will cease, without any membership fee refund, if eligibility requirements are no longer in place. You further agree to be subject to any bylaws subsequently adopted by CCA members and agree to the following regarding access to or creation of intellectual property.

2.1 Unless otherwise permitted through a TASB authorized written notice or agreement, access to TASB proprietary materials provided to a CCA member, without cost or on a fee basis, does not convey or transfer any copyright interest to the work itself. TASB proprietary materials may include compilations and collections of materials and information that, individually or in part, may be found in the public domain but as assembled by and through TASB constitute its proprietary work. Authorized access to TASB proprietary materials are for use in the provision of legal services to your clients that are TASB members only. Reproduction, distribution, or adaptation—in whole or in part—of TASB proprietary materials for any other purpose is strictly prohibited unless specifically authorized in writing by TASB or expressly required by law, provided written notice thereof is given to TASB. Use of TASB proprietary materials (e.g., TASB Community College [LEGAL] framework) for reference purposes in a public presentation or in training materials generally will be permitted if approved by TASB and the appropriate TASB copyright and/or trademark notices are displayed. Inquiries or requests for permission will be submitted to the Director of TASB Community College Services.

2.2 You understand that, as a CCA member, you may be asked to contribute copyrightable works to TASB, including the CCA program associated with TASB. As used herein, “copyrightable contribution” shall mean a writing, drawing,
