

About the Ethics Review Pre-Application

If you believe you may need to report a potential ethics violation, the Ethics Review Preapplication lets you submit your information and supporting documentation before applying for a credential. Through this process, the ARRT Ethics Committee will review your situation and provide guidance before you submit your application for certification and registration.

Important Notes and Acknowledgements

1. Scope of Ethics Review

The Ethics Review only addresses the violations you disclose in your Ethics Review Preapplication. Any violations you fail to report in your Preapplication, or that occur after your Ethics Review, may still affect your eligibility later.

2. Other Requirements Still Apply

Submitting an Ethics Review Preapplication doesn't replace any other ARRT eligibility or application steps. You must still complete and submit your Application for Certification and Registration along with the required fee.

3. Examination and Ethics Decision

You may take an exam before ARRT decides whether you meet the ethics requirement. However, your exam scores will be held until a final decision is made. If ARRT determines you did not meet the ethics requirement at the time of your exam, your scores will be cancelled, and that exam will count as one of your three attempts allowed.
