

Annual Exam Report - 2025

Introduction

This report first summarizes exam volume, exam performance, individual percentile ranks, and education program percentile ranks (as applicable) for each examination separately. Each following section then presents a brief content outline for the exam and the number of items in each category. Specific results for 2024 include mean scaled section scores, mean total scaled scores, and pass rates as well as charts with historical pass rates and candidate volumes for each exam. Finally, if the exam has a primary eligibility pathway, the section will include a map detailing candidate volume, mean scaled score, and percent passing for educational programs in each state.

Unless otherwise specified, this report presents statistics based each candidate's first attempt. ARRT uses the first attempt because it is the only one that all candidates are guaranteed to see. Including repeat attempts would overrepresent a subpopulation of candidates and bias the report.

Data in this report are not intended to be used as the sole source for educational program evaluation. When interpreting performance at the educational program or state level, it is important to acknowledge that these results are sensitive to multiple factors. These factors may include but are not limited to the number of candidates upon which the means are computed, characteristics of those candidates, educational program admissions criteria, and the emphasis of an educational program's curriculum.

Interpretation of Scores

Total Scaled Score: The ARRT uses scaled scores to report exam results. Total scaled scores can range from 1 to 99.

Scaled scores are desirable because they account for any differences in difficulty between two or more versions of an exam. The use of scaled scores adjusts for differences in exam difficulty such that a given scaled score corresponds to the same level of performance regardless of exam form and permits comparison of exam results over time. Using scaled scores also ensures that those taking different forms are not penalized for taking a slightly more difficult exam.

Scaled scores are sometimes mistaken for percent correct scores. This confusion likely arises because ARRT scaled scores and percentages share a similar range of values. However, a scaled score of 75 does not mean that a candidate correctly answered 75% of the test items.

Section Scores: Scaled scores are used to report performance on each section of the exam. The primary purpose of the section scores is to provide information to candidates regarding their relative strengths and weaknesses in particular content categories. Section scores can range from 0.1 to 9.9 and are reported in one-tenth point intervals (e.g., 8.1, 8.6). Section scores are intentionally placed on a narrower scale because they are derived from a smaller number of test items. Therefore, section scores are not as reliable as the total scaled score and should be interpreted with some caution.

Passing Score: A total scaled score of 75 is required to pass all ARRT exams. This pass-fail point, called the “cut score,” is established by ARRT’s Board of Trustees through a process called standard setting. During the standard setting process, the Board receives input from a panel representing a broad constituency of subject matter experts. The cut score represents the performance standard required to obtain certification and registration; those who meet or exceed the standard pass the exam. Beginning in 2013, the Sonography exam also requires a section scaled score of 7.5 or greater in both the Abdomen and OB/GYN sections.

Readers are encouraged to visit the exam statistics page of the ARRT website for additional reporting, such as past years’ reports or an explanation of ARRT’s scaling procedures.

Updates

Starting with this report, all ARRT exam statistics will be published together in a single annual report and technical appendix. Previous reports, split by primary and postprimary eligibility pathway, will remain on the exam statistics page of ARRT.org for their normal duration.

Updated content specifications for the Radiologist Assistant exam went into effect January 2023. Notably, these content specifications replaced the case study essay responses with objectively scored items. You can read more in the Updated R.R.A. Documents news release or the exam content specifications page at ARRT.org. With the discontinuation of essay response items, Radiologist Assistant exam statistics will be presented in this annual report and the technical appendix rather than as a separate publication.

Updated content specifications went into effect July 2024 for both Cardiac Interventional and Vascular Interventional Radiography. You can read more in the Updated Cardiac Interventional Radiography Documents and Updated Vascular Interventional Radiography Documents news releases at ARRT.org. Separate section-level performance tables are included for those that took the exam before and after the update. Please note that, due to the change in content, these tables are not directly comparable.

Updated content specifications went into effect February 2025 for Magnetic Resonance Imaging. And went into effect September 2025 for Mammography.

Summary Statistics

Exam Volume

Exam	First-time Candidates	Repeat	State	Reinstatement	Total
Radiography	14070	2726	50	530	17376
