A gateway between the two nations of the Iberian peninsula, Badajoz lies as close to Lisbon as it does to Madrid or Seville, and the city draws on influences from both sides of the border, as well as from centuries of tumultuous history, to form its distinctive character. Winding medieval alleys and a skyline dotted with palace towers make the historic town a sight to behold, while the remnants of the majestic Alcazaba watch over the city as they have for centuries, once an impenetrable fortress that protected the area from countless invasions.

THE CITY

Fotoeventis / Shutterstock.com

With its historically strategic location, so close to the Portuguese border, Badajoz was an important line of defence for Spain for centuries. Battled over by the Spanish, Portuguese, Moorish, and even the French and Spanish, the city is the result of the meeting of different peoples, cultures and eras. Badajoz and its surroundings hide numerous archaeological treasures dating back centuries, from Roman ruins to Moorish palaces to empire era forts.

The river Guadiana crosses the city, dividing the more modern northern area from the historic centre to the south, which emanates from the impressive Plaza Alta square and is surrounded by remnants of the old city walls (as well as towers and the Alcazaba, an ancient palace and fort). To the west, Badajoz reaches all the way to Portugal, making it an ideal home base for those who wish to explore both sides of the border.

DO & SEE

Fotoeventis / Shutterstock.com

Badajoz proud history is evident throughout its centuries-old buildings and monuments. The Alcazaba, Espantaperros Tower and Plaza Alta (the old town's main square) all showcase the city's Moorish influences, and great museums exhibit the prodigious contemporary artistic output of the region. The city also boasts fantastic modern attractions and activities for visitors of all ages.

Espantaperros Tower

Dating back to the 12th century, the imposing Espantaperros Tower was once the Alcazaba's most important watchtower, and today looms over the city from a height of 30 metres and offers some of the best panoramic views of the city.
