(Note: Production work cannot begin until each author has signed and returned this form.)

To: _____ (Author)

From: _____ (Editor), acting for Duke University Press ("the Publisher").

We are pleased to have accepted for publication in American Literature your article titled

_____.

As a condition of publication, the Author hereby grants and assigns to the Publisher, under the terms set forth below, any and all rights covered by the Copyright Law of the United States and those of all foreign countries in and to the above-named article, including subsidiary rights and rights in any medium now known or hereafter discovered. The Author also hereby guarantees that this article contains no matter which can be construed as libelous or as infringing in any way on the copyright of another party, and that they will defend, indemnify, and hold harmless the Publisher against all suits, proceedings, or claims that may be taken on the grounds that said article is in such violation.

The Publisher, as assignee, grants to the Author the following noncommercial rights: the right to make and distribute copies of the article in the course of teaching and research; the right to quote from the article in any book or article that they may later write; the right to photocopy the article for their own use, including use in their own classes; and the right to post the Author's accepted manuscript (AAM) noncommercially, without embargo, on the Author's personal website, in the Author's university repository, and in other nonprofit or governmental open access repositories, with copyright and source information provided along with a link to the published version as soon as it is available. Where required by their funder or institution, the Author may apply a Creative Commons license of BY (attribution required) to the AAM. The Author also has the right to republish the article in any book they may write or edit after the journal has appeared. In case of republication, notice of previous publication in American Literature, and that it is republished by permission of the copyright holder, Duke University Press, must be given.

The (corresponding) Author will be given an opportunity, and a reasonable amount of time, to read and correct either the edited manuscript or proofs, depending on the journal's customary procedure. If these are not returned to the Editor or the Publisher by the date specified, then production and publication may proceed without the Author's corrections. For diagrams or illustrations used in the article, the Author agrees to furnish digital files satisfactory to the Publisher's production department. In addition, the Author agrees to be responsible for composition charges incurred when their changes made to typeset proofs affect, as an average, more than two lines per page.
