Betty's Story

|| Betty, 73, was spending $144 a month on Medicare premiums, which made it increasingly difficult to afford daily expenses, including health care for her heart disease, arthritis, and osteoporosis. She was also caring for her son who lost his job due to a health issue. The Pennsylvania Benefits Center helped Betty apply for the Medicare Savings Program, which put that $144 back into her monthly Social Security check. Betty also discovered she was eligible for a Property Tax Rent Rebate to help with housing costs and $223 a month in food benefits through the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program. Now Betty and her son have the resources they need to rebuild their financial security.

Benefits outreach and enrollment works —but without this assistance low-income Pennsylvanians on Medicare will be left behind, unable to afford basic health care.
