The Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers of America (IIABA) and its member Trusted Choice® agencies offer the following tips for college students and parents to help determine their risk and to help protect against unnecessary loss during the school year:

When college students need to think about buying health insurance:

- Student attends college part-time.
- Student is planning to travel or study in a foreign country.
- Student is planning to or is currently taking time off from school.
- Student is not employed.
- Student is 23 years old or older.
- Student is married or has children.

Who is most at risk for property losses at school:

- Students who live away from home.
- Students who rent (especially those who rent in their own name or co-sign a lease with a parent).
- Students who live in group houses (including fraternity and sorority houses).
- Students who own expensive electronics, sports equipment or jewelry (like engagement or class rings).
- Students who live in large cities or high crime areas.
• Students who travel frequently (including those who plan to travel or study abroad).
• Students who run businesses from their dorm or apartment (like typing papers and notes, tutoring or freelancing).
• Students who host frequent parties.
• Students who have animals (especially dogs) at school.

How students can guard against theft on campus:
• Make sure all expensive electronic and sports equipment is engraved with a serial number or your name.
• Keep an inventory of all expensive items you are taking to school, along with original receipts and photographs, and keep it in a safe place.
• Leave the most expensive items (like good jewelry) at home.
• Always lock your dorm or apartment door, even if you’re just running down the hall for a minute.
• If you live in a group house, always lock your bedroom door during a party.
• Don't leave your backpack unattended at the library.
• Report any suspicious incidents to the police or campus security. Many campus crimes go unreported.
