

ESPN'S KIRK HERBSTREIT AND MARTY SMITH TEAMED UP WITH ECKRICH® TO SCORE A $300,000 DONATION FOR CHARITY AHEAD OF THE COLLEGE FOOTBALL PLAYOFF NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP

Marty Smith Successfully Completed a 15-Yard Throw Through a Target to Earn a Donation for CFP Foundation's Extra Yard for Teachers Charity

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 10, 2022 /PRNewswire/ -- Bullseye! Leading up to the College Football National Championship game, Kirk Herbstreit, Emmy Award-winning ESPN/ABC college football analyst, and Marty Smith, multifaceted sports journalist for ESPN, took center stage at the Playoff Fan Central in the Indiana Convention Center to participate in Eckrich®'s $1 Million Challenge for Teachers to fund education projects. Marty Smith successfully completed the challenge to earn a noteworthy donation for CFP Foundation's Extra Yard for Teachers Charity.

Herbstreit and Smith had five chances each to successfully complete a 15-yard throw through a target. Luckily, Smith made his fourth throw, generating a $100,000 donation to Extra Yard for Teachers on behalf of Eckrich. To further show support for the cause, Eckrich added another $200,000 to the donation in good faith, bringing the total to $300,000.

This is the fifth year that Eckrich has partnered with the CFP Foundation's Extra Yard for Teachers program to celebrate teachers across the country for their honest work and tireless commitment to ensure that their students have the tools to succeed. This donation will be added to the more than two million dollars that the brand has donated to the charity throughout the years.

"The excitement leading up to the College Football Playoff National Championship game is electric. I'm so glad that I could channel this positive energy and use it to help me make one of the throws during the Eckrich $1 Million Challenge for Teachers," said Marty Smith, multifaceted sports journalist for ESPN. "There's no denying that teachers are heroes, and I'm thankful that this donation will help provide them with the resources that they need to ensure they have a brighter 2022."

"I have been involved with numerous charitable endeavors throughout my career, and the Eckrich $1 Million Challenge throws have been some of the most important and impactful," said Kirk Herbstreit, Emmy Award-winning ESPN/ABC college football analyst. "It's an incredible feeling knowing that this donation on behalf of Eckrich will help so many teachers across the country who do so much for the development of our communities and the education of our most precious resource, our kids."

"We are so grateful for all of the support that Eckrich has shown our organization all season long, and we couldn't be more thrilled that Marty Smith successfully completed the Eckrich $1 Million Challenge for Teachers," said Britton Banowsky, executive director of the College Football Foundation. "This donation will help lift teachers up and provide them with the support they need, and it couldn't come at a better time. These essential workers need our help, now more than ever."

"We share Kirk and Marty's excitement in awarding Extra Yard for Teachers with a $300,000 donation," said Rikki Ingram, director of marketing at Smithfield Foods. "Teachers are truly heroes, especially as they've navigated the challenges of the past few school years, and we couldn't be happier to make a difference in their lives and help fund their classroom projects to enhance their students' learning environment through this contribution."

The $1 Million Challenge for Teachers wasn't the only exciting thing Eckrich had cooking up this year. As the Official Smoked Sausage and Deli Meat Sponsor of the College Football Playoff, Eckrich launched a social contest – the College Football Playoff National Tailgate Champion – to crown the first-ever master of pre-game grilling. Tom Anderson from Holland, Michigan was selected as the lucky winner and received an all-expenses paid trip to attend the CFP National Championship and a custom National Tailgate Champion Ring.
