

Your dog gets excited to hear the “w” word (walk!) and is always curious to check out their local park.

They can't resist running with their doggy pals, and may get carried away by the excitement and zoom out of your sight!

Your dog may be at risk and require regular protection from roundworms, hookworms, whipworms, ticks and fleas.

POSSIBLE RISKS

As your dog loves to find all sorts of tasty treats, your dog may be at risk for tapeworms. Ask your veterinarian if you live in an endemic area for Echinococcus multilocularis or Echinococcus granulosus.

Depending on your geographic area, your dog could be at risk for heartworms and require appropriate seasonal protection.

ADDITIONAL RISKS

DID YOU KNOW?

If your dog lives with other pets it is important to consider parasite prevention for all members of your furry household, especially for fleas.

Share this dog profile with your veterinarian and ask for the most suitable parasite control products to ensure your pet and household are protected!

Zoonotic Risks: Some parasites can move from dogs to humans. There is a higher risk of concern in children, elderly, pregnant or immunosuppressed individuals.
