International Foundation Year Business, Law and Social Studies

This course leads to a wide range of exciting undergraduate degrees at Leeds Beckett University, in areas ranging from business and law to marketing and public relations.

Modules:

Academic English Skills

Academic English Skills aims to provide thorough training in the language and related academic skills which will enable international students to best achieve their academic potential at university. Our Academic English Skills module is validated by UK ENIC, the UK government agency responsible for providing information and expert opinion on qualifications and skills worldwide.

You will develop awareness and competency in a range of language-related academic skills, including the processes of academic writing, effective and extensive reading strategies, effective participation in seminars and delivery of presentations, and listening to and recording information effectively from lectures. You will also develop the accuracy and range of written and spoken language required to use language effectively and appropriately, with clarity and confidence in an academic context.

Alongside your classes, your studies will be supported by an online learning platform, providing you with a range of tasks and activities specifically designed to develop and extend your language and academic skills outside the classroom and to give you more control over your own learning.

Business in a Global Context

This module will introduce you to the global nature of business and to the various political, economic, and cultural issues associated with international business. It will also support you in developing your teamwork, research and communication skills, and give you an introduction to the local economy, by employing a practical, case-based assessment strategy.

Business and Finance

This module will develop your understanding of key management business and finance issues and methodologies used in business practice to aid and inform decision making and performance management. The module will be problem orientated, taking realistic business settings and showing how techniques of financial and data analysis can be used to offer alternative solutions and predict financial consequences.

Project Skills

This module provides you with an opportunity to identify and research a topic aligned to your progression degree. It will equip you with fundamental scholarly, research and transferable skills necessary for progression on to an undergraduate course.

Social Sciences

This module introduces you to three interlinked social sciences: politics, criminology and sociology. Concepts and case studies are introduced and understood through three inter-related lenses to provide you with a wide-ranging understanding of international issues.

Law

This module introduces you to the law and legal system in England and Wales, including its underlying principles, the personnel who administer it, the mechanics of the legal process, and justice in broader perspectives. It also introduces you to the core principles in Criminal Law, Tort Law and Contract Law.

Biology

This module will introduce you to the fundamental concepts of human biology consisting of seven key topics: cells, biological molecules, movement across membranes, protein synthesis, cell replication, enzymes, and respiration. This module will further develop your knowledge of the major systems of the human body consisting of six key topics: the circulatory, respiratory, digestive, nervous, urinary, and hormonal systems. The module also further develops your maths, laboratory skills and scientific report writing as well as introducing you to experiment planning.

Chemistry

This module introduces you to the fundamental principles that form the basis of chemistry. It consists of seven key topics: Atomic Structure and Bonding, Mole concept, Redox reactions, Thermodynamics, Chemical Equilibria, Chemical Kinetics, and Organic Chemistry. The module also further develops your laboratory skills and scientific report writing as well as introduces you to experiment planning.

Physics

This physics module provides you with an essential understanding and aims to garner interest in key aspects of physics (materials, fluids, electrical circuits) in preparation for degree courses in engineering, computing and other STEM subjects. It provides opportunities for you to master your English language skills through discussion and academic writing.

Maths for Engineering and Computing

Mathematics for Engineering and Computing provides you with a foundation in the mathematical modelling of systems and the core maths skills which are integral to courses in engineering, computing and other STEM subjects. It aims to garner interest in mathematics as a subject and through exposure to its applications. It also aims to develop self-confidence so that you are ready to take initiative and work independently.

Disclaimer

This guide is intended as a general guide for students considering entry to the Leeds International Study Centre for progression to Leeds Beckett University from 2023. Leeds International Study Centre for progression to Leeds Beckett University is operated, and its courses offered by, Study Group Limited ("Study Group"). This guide forms no part of any contract between you and Study Group except as provided below. The guide is prepared in advance of the academic year to which it relates, and Study Group makes every effort to ensure that the information contained here is accurate.

Although reasonable steps are taken by Study Group to provide the courses and services described, Study Group cannot guarantee the provision of any course. Any course may be altered or withdrawn owing to circumstances beyond Study Group's reasonable control. Such circumstances include (but are not limited to) industrial action, lack of demand, departure of key personnel, change in government policy, withdrawal, or reduction of funding, change of law or changes necessitated by the Coronavirus pandemic.

Study Group will take such steps as are available to it to minimise the effect of any alteration or withdrawal of a course and we will notify you of such alteration or withdrawal as soon as possible. Such steps may include the offer of a place on an alternative course. Please note that the Leeds International Study Centre for progression to Leeds Beckett University website is the most up to date source of information regarding courses and facilities and we strongly recommend that you always visit the website before making any commitments.
