Erin Sapiano walked slowly around the airy room. She paused by the window, looking out at the grass with its borders crowded with purple flowers. Her fingers trailed over the pale blue walls, the white chest of drawers and the desk. A thrill of happiness ran through her – her own bedroom. For the last two years she'd had to share a room with two other girls in a children's home and the arguments had been continuous. But today Erin had moved to a foster home.

Is this really all for me? she thought, looking round.

No, no, no, a voice spoke quickly in her head, pouring icy water on her hopes. This isn't yours. It belongs to Rachel. Don't forget this is just a trial placement. You're only here for as long as Rachel wants you to stay.

Erin knew better than to think placements lasted. She'd moved homes more often than she could remember.

When she was five years old, Erin had been put into care because her mum couldn't look after her any more. She had moved between short-term placements for a year until she had finally been placed in a foster home with Ada and David when she was six. She'd stayed with them for three years but then Ada had become ill and Erin had moved to a few more temporary homes.

Letters From Lockdown Famous faces, frontline workers and stay-at-home heroes reflect on the year everything changed

An inspiring, honest, uplifting collection of letters about life during Coronavirus, from celebrities, COVID heroes, and a diverse range of members of the public, all answering the question: 'What was lockdown like for you?'. Introduced by Barnardo's president, Natasha Kaplinsky.

Description

Introduced by newsreader, presenter, and Barnardo's president Natasha Kaplinsky, Letters From Lockdown features 100+ letters from celebrity names, C OVID heroes, and a diverse range of members of the public, all answering the question - 'What was lockdown like for you?'

Contributors include: Paul McCartney · Joe Wicks · Malala Yousafzai · Helen Mirren · Cressida Cowell · Mary Berry · Lin-Manuel Miranda · Richard Branson · Peppa Pig · Andy Murray · Helena Bonham Carter · Lenny Henry · Bruno Tonioli · Romesh Ranganathan · The family of Captain Tom · Bear Grylls · Charly Cox · Dr Alex George · Jacqueline Wilson · Matt Lucas · Monica Galetti · Ed Sheeran · Kelly Holmes · Bill Gates · Bridgerton creator Chris Van Dusen, and many more.

The publisher will donate all profits, which will be a minimum of £1.50 for each copy of the book sold, to Barnardo's (registered charity in England and Wales no. 216250), who do important work to protect and support the UK's most vulnerable children, more in need now than ever.

The letter writers include doctors and nurses, care home staff and vaccinators, train drivers and hairdressers, teachers and environmentalists - people who have been on the frontline in tackling the pandemic, or in trying to get the world back on its feet. Other letters document the unforgettable lighter moments of the past year: interviews crashed by children, TikTok triumphs and disasters, and Goats joining Zoom meetings. Each offers their unique perspective on the year everything changed.

Other contributors include: Al Gore; Alexandra Shulman, Davina McCall, Toby Regbo, Trevor McDonald, Jo Malone, Keir Starmer, Boris Johnson, Mark Ronson, Maro Itoje, Nicola Adams, Raymond Blanc, Richard Curtis and Emma Freud, Mick Jagger, Sita Brahmachari, Sophie Gonzales, Hayden Kays, Tim Peake, Sean Fitzpatrick, and Joan Collins.

The idea for the book came from Natasha Kaplinsky's children, Arlo and Kika. They wrote an open letter, wanting to understand other people's experiences of lockdown. Their question, 'What was lockdown like for you?' is the prompt; the collection of letters in response form the book. As we keep our fingers crossed that this summer will bring a safe end to restrictions, this mixture of funny, sad, heart-warming, surprising, heroic and honest experiences will mark the start of a period of reflection.
